The Key Light. The Key Light is the main light on the subject. If we were to draw a line between the view of the camera and the subject, the key light is usually placed at a 45-degree angle to the camera. Lighting everything blue is a cheap trick that helps emulate night...even though it's not necessarily accurate, it's a good starting point. Chroma key compositing, or chroma keying, is a visual effects/post-production technique for compositing (layering) two images or video streams together based on color hues (chroma range). A breadboard is a construction base for prototyping of electronics. Originally it was literally a bread board, a polished piece of wood used for slicing bread [citation needed]
